

Responsible Gambling Coordinator

For more than 30 years, the Virginia Lottery has been building an amazing organization committed to growth and giving back – and having fun while doing it. Operating entirely on revenue from game sales, rather than tax dollars, the Virginia Lottery generates approximately $1.6 million per day for Virginia's K-12 public schools. The Virginia Lottery is being assigned new responsibilities to license and regulate casino gaming and mobile sports betting.

The Virginia Lottery, an independent state agency, is currently seeking a Responsible Gambling Coordinator to join its newly created Gaming Compliance Department.

The Responsible Gambling Coordinator will:

- Develop, implement and maintain the evaluation of best practices regarding responsible gambling, problem gambling prevention and the voluntary exclusion program.
- Develop and maintain a voluntary exclusion data base of all participants.
- Work with and provide training to the appropriate judicial systems to ensure appropriate action is taken for exclusion violations.
- Respond to subpoena requests for records and documentation.
- Testify at hearings and recommend appropriate action.
- Assist the sports betting and casino operators in developing community awareness of problem gambling.
- Participate in collaborative public awareness campaigns for holiday periods and problem gambling awareness month.
- Collaborate with appropriate state agencies and organizations such as the National Council on Problem Gambling, and the National Association of State and Provincial Lotteries to determine best practices.
- Partner with marketing to ensure ethical and responsible marketing.
- Participate and present at Problem Gambling Conferences.
- Assist sports betting operators and casinos in the development and review of a strategic plan that includes policies, programs and procedures to address problem gambling.
- Perform other duties as required or assigned.

Only online applications will be accepted for this position (visit www.valottery.com for further details and to apply).
